HELPFUL ART IN COVID

Art is part of positive therapy and it cures

The University Hospital in Motol has opened premises for a unique gallery

February 1-28, 2021 - Motol University Hospital – Prague – Czech Republic - Headquarters Building

The International traveling exhibition HELPFUL ART IN COVID, which maps art created during the pandemic in 90 countries around the world, is open at the University Hospital in Motol in Prague. It is the largest medical facility in the Czech Republic and one of the largest in Europe.

Mr. Jan Horník, Vice-President of the Senate of the Parliament of the Czech Republic and Czech Chamber of Commerce took over the auspices of the Helpful Art In Covid project.

Art helps us survive covid in a better mood and with common sense.

“The pandemic has affected the whole world, and artists from many countries have responded to it in specific ways. The works are inspiring, capturing the thoughts and impressions that the creators had during the pandemic. Together, we prepared the Helpful Art in Covid exhibition not only as a thank you to paramedics and all rescue services, but also with the aim of mapping the unique results of this creative process in our country and in the world. I am convinced that art is part of positive therapy and heals,” says Mr. Martin Holcát, M.D., MBA, Medical Director of the Motol University Hospital.

Annual Lennon Tribute, in 40th year, Goes Online

BY DAVID BAUDER,
ASSOCIATED PRESS / SEPT.

A couple look at the "Lennon Wall" with a face mask attached to the image of John Lennon, in Prague, Czech Republic, on April 6, 2020. Like so many other events in the year of coronavirus, an annual tribute to John Lennon held in its adopted city of New York will go online. The event will be streamed for free on Lennon's birthday, October 9, starting at 7 p.m. Eastern time on the LennonTribute.org website. It will feature recorded performances from Patti Smith, Rosanne Cash, Natalie Merchant, Jackson Browne, Jorma Kaukonen and others. (AP Photo/Petr David Josek)

The exhibition was created thanks to a face mask on a portrait of John Lennon on Lennon's wall in Prague.

The author and curator Pavel Šťastný explains why the exhibition was created:

"We all had to put on a face mask. So we symbolically placed it on a large portrait of John Lennon on the wall, which has been a symbol of freedom and love for our country for decades.

Photographs of Lennon's veiled wall have traveled the world and been published in hundreds of media. It became the most famous and largest Czech face mask.

The visual became part of online groups of artists whose works focused on Covid-19. Dozens of works from many countries began to walk me on social networks every day, supporting millions of people around the world in difficult times and helping everyone to survive mentally.

So I decided to start mapping, collecting, sorting this new Art Covid art and created an exhibition out of it.

The exhibition was based on the first online selection by the French collector Blaise Runart, who also added our face mask from Lennon's wall in Prague. Runart from the island of Réunion supported me and provided me with his collection, which already had over 1,000 works of art at the time.

The exhibition now has over 2,000 works of art by 500 artists from 90 countries out of five continents.

The Washington Post used a photograph with a face mask from the Lennon Wall in Prague to invite to the online 40th annual concert in honor of John Lennon, which took place in October 2020 in New York for his dead 80th birthday.

More than a hundred other media outlets in the United States, Canada, the Philippines, Lebanon, Trinidad and Tobago, Bulgaria, and other countries have taken the photo from the US press agency AP - Associated Press.

The International traveling exhibition HELPFUL ART IN COVID, which maps art created during the pandemic, will be open at the Military University Hospital (ÚVN) Prague. This hospital is a training, educational and professional medical facility of the Army of the Czech Republic.

The exhibition will then travel to other cities and countries around the world and will connect with local artists, and continue to map other works of art that are still being created.

The exposition will be complemented by information on how the military fights Covid and helps around the world.

In cooperation with NATO Days in Ostrava and their organizer Jagello 2000.

“Thanks to those who protect us”

The weekend program of the NATO Days in Ostrava & Czech Air Force Days 2020 included an award ceremony with the subtitle “Thanks to those who protect us”. Thousand members of the armed forces and security and health agencies (Armed Forces of the Czech Republic, Police of the Czech Republic, Fire Rescue Service of the Czech Republic, Municipal Police of Ostrava, Customs Administration of the Czech Republic, Prison Service of the Czech Republic, Emergency Medical Service of the Czech Republic and regional health authorities) were awarded by a commemorative badge.

The ceremony was attended by the highest representatives of the Czech Government and the above mentioned services.

Decorated members of the services were the front line fighters in the battle with the covid-19 pandemic in spring 2020.
